

Seasonal Schools in Signal Processing

Seasonal Schools in Signal Processing

Summer 2019 proposals being accepted now!

Are you looking to energize signal processing students, early stage researchers, and industry practitioners in your area? Consider hosting a Seasonal School for young engineers near you!

Seasonal Schools are interactive events designed to provide attendees with specialized background in select signal processing topics. Professors and established practitioners work closely with attendees in hands-on tutorials and applications, building meaningful collaborative relationships.

The IEEE Signal Processing Society is happy to provide up to US$5,000 of support, on an application basis, to help offset the cost of these workshops and conferences, and we're accepting proposals for Summer 2019 Seasonal Schools now!
